

MAINE MASTER NATURALIST PROGRAM

Natural History Booklist

We ask that our students read one natural history book while participating in the course and write a brief summary of the reading. The purpose of this requirement is to expand upon and deepen your learning about natural history, to give you insight into the human side of nature study and our interactions with the natural world, and offer a glimpse into the many varied ways naturalists spend time in nature and communicate their experiences. The following list offers a wide range of reading options, from timeless classics to recent releases. Most of them are specific to North America, many with a focus on the Northeast and New England (and more than a few were written about Maine), though some have a more global perspective. If you find a book that you'd like to read that's not on this list, please clear it with your mentor.
